Legal Transformation Programme

What is Legal Transformation Programme?

Our Legal Transformation Programme is focused on teaching participants how to create an innovative mindset, and how to apply technologies and business skills towards becoming more competitive and successful in a rapidly changing legal services market. During the programme, participants will experience a match of cutting edge knowledge supply and hands-on technology application through interactive lectures and workshops delivered by experts from across Europe and beyond.
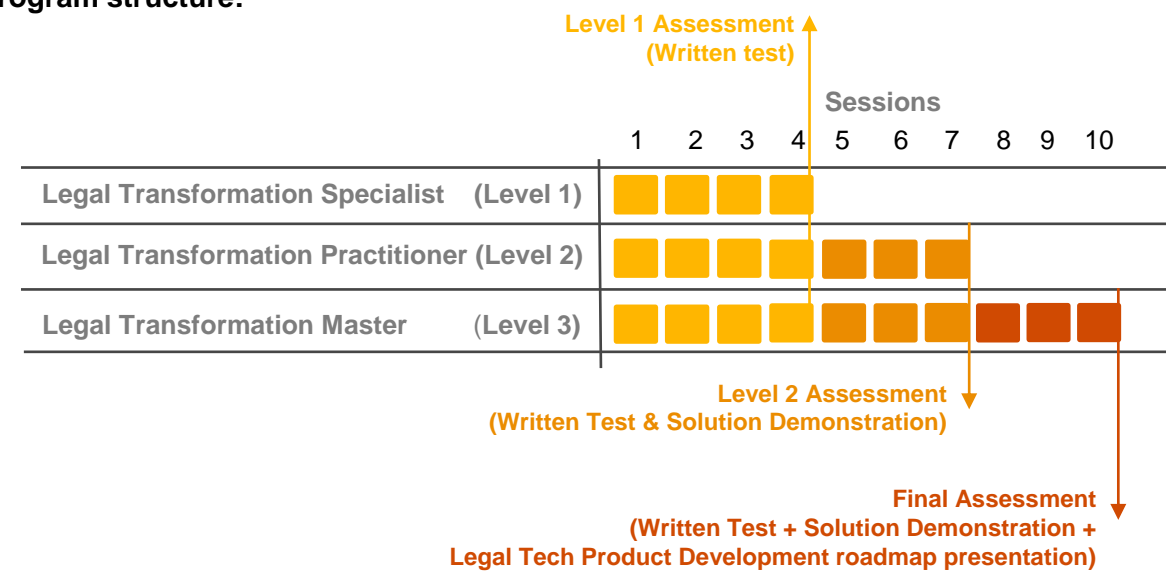

Why is this programme important?

Market research results and reports show that the top two transformations in the delivery of legal services will involve greater use of technology and greater degree of specialization. Furthermore, 70% of legal professionals have reported the lack of technology knowledge and skills, and not understanding operating systems that use technology as the top reasons for employee resistance to new technologies. More than one-half of lawyers across both Europe and the USA expect to see some impact from transformational technologies such as Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Blockchain however, less than 24% of them have reported that they understand technology (''The Future Ready Lawyer Survey'', Wolters Kluwer 2019). Taking the foregoing into account, one could argue that mastering the art of addressing these challenges could be the first and fundamental requirement, not only for legal professionals but also for other business and IT professionals in the legal industry, to stay afloat and competitive in the changing legal market, which is shaped predominantly by new technologies, new competitors, increasing client expectations, technology-based regulation, and events of global magnitude (i.e. pandemics).
This is where we come in!

Who is it for?
